They Want What They Want When They Want It.

People in the great cities fill many pages of the big newspapers with WANT ADS. When they want what they want when they want it, they patronize the WANT AD. columns.

The same thing can be done in this town and this paper—the introduction of the want-to-the wantee.

If you have anything for sale, for rent, for exchange; if you want to buy or rent anything, if you want to get a position or if you want to hire somebody—

A little WANT will bring you what you want.

The cost is insignificant compared to the satisfactory result.

WHAT DO YOU WANT?

BARGAINS IN LAND

200 acres 3 miles from railroad station, 6 miles from Amber, 110 acres in cultivation, 40 acres good branch bottom, fenced hog tight, 20 acres in alfalfa, new 4-room house, entire place fenced and cross-fenced; price only $25 per acre, $1,000 cash, balance time to suit purchaser.

160 acres of very fine Washita bottom, in fine state of cultivation; located 3 1/2 miles from Chickasha, fenced with 4 wires. There is no better piece of bottom land in Oklahoma; price $55 per acre. This choice tract of land is well worth $75 per acre; has a loan of $40 per acre.

640-acre stock farm 10 miles from Duncan, 220 acres in cultivation, 220 acres choice bottom, 40 acres alfalfa, fine improvements of every kind, fenced and cross-fenced with hog wire into six different pastures. Owner is leaving the state and offers to sell this farm at a big bargain; price $20 per acre. We can loan $15 per acre on this land.

100 acres 5 miles from Chickasha, 30 acres bottom, 4-room house and out buildings, good water, fenced and cross-fenced; price, $3,500, $1,500 cash, balance time to suit purchaser.

150 acres of land, first class improvements, clear of incumbrance, located in the southwest part of the county; to exchange for business property in Chickasha.

40 acres 1/2 mile from city limits, large modern 8-room house, good barn, fenced and cross-fenced, 5 acres suitable for alfalfa; price $4,500.

20 acres 2 miles from Chickasha, 15 acres first class bottom land, 4-room house, good orchard; price $2,600; will exchange for house with considerable ground, West Hill preferred.

CITY PROPERTY.

Good 5-room house and barn, one-half block of ground, good orchard, well located on South Hill, 1 block from pavement; will exchange for something nearer town.

$12,000 stock of general merchandise in good town on the Rock Island to exchange for Grady county land.

FARM LOANS.

We loaned about $150,000 in 1915 on Oklahoma lands. We expect to lend $200,000 this year, as we have a better loan proposition than ever. Remember we lend on probate or inherited land, in fact, on any kind of title that is good or can be made good.

GRADY COUNTY EXPRESS, Chickasha, Okla.

As soon as an attack of rheumatism begins apply Sloan's Liniment. Don't waste time and suffer unnecessary agony. A few drops of Sloan's Liniment on the affected parts is all you need. The pain goes at once.

A grateful sufferer writes: "I was suffering for three weeks with Chronic Rheumatism and Stiff Neck, although I tried many medicines, they failed, and I was under the care of a doctor. Fortunately I heard of Sloan's Liniment and after using three or four days am up and well. I am employed at the biggest department store in S. F. where they employ from six to eight hundred hands, and they surely will hear all about Sloan's Liniment." —H. B. Smith, San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 1915. At all druggists. d&w

MATIE'S CLAIM

By IZOLA FORRESTER.

The two cars turned simultaneously into the hilly street leading to the little railroad station.

Parker laughed back over his shoulder at the other driver and called something that was answered by a shout.

"Do you know any of them?" asked Matie.

"Rather. It's old Doc Warren, grand old Doc Warren, great old Doc! So long, Doc!"

The other car was gaining, though Warren, at the wheel, slipped into high speed and took the hill dizzily. As they flashed by, Matie caught her first glimpse of him, sitting far down in his seat, his cap pulled low over his keen, dark eyes, just the hint of a dark mustache and a boyish smile of impish joy at beating Parker.

At the station, while she and Mildred went inside out of the cold, Parker shook hands with the victor.

"I'd have let her go, too, if it hadn't been for the precious load aboard."

"Who is she?" asked Warren, with a far-away look in his eyes.

"Not for you, boy," laughed Parker. "Grand old Doc, she's of rarest clay—Matie Burroughs. Father produces millions from patent food products for dyspeptics, but he hasn't invented anything for the trail of victims Matie leaves after her. She's been visiting Louise up at Craggmore Lodge."

"Bet twenty dollars I marry her," said Warren. "I always believed I'd know the right girl when I first looked at her, and I do, too. It's 35 miles to the Shore line. Parkie, before we hit the Grand Central I'm going to make her understand how I feel about it."

Parker hesitated. "Aren't you going to introduce me?" Warren smiled at him with beatific enjoyment of the situation and, as the New York express pulled in, somehow Louise had managed the introduction in her quick way, and Warren sat beside Matie Burroughs in the general pairing off of the two parties. Mrs. Parker and Warren's Aunt Paula were far too occupied with their own reunion to bother over the duties of chaperonage, and Warren got himself to beat Time and Fate inside of three hours.

Matie, in dark green and white fox furs, took the onslaught demurely. In fact, she was rather accustomed to just such situations. Easily she parried his opening points. Yes, she had heard of him from Dave Morton, her cousin out at the School of Mines. Warren had been there, too, she believed. Was she interested in mines herself? She smiled doubtfully. After one has been brought up on mines, so to speak, they lose their glamour. For the moment, Warren forgot his bet.

"Do you know anything about the Diamond Eye?" he asked eagerly. She glanced at him curiously.

"At Crooked Creek? I've heard of it. Why?"

"My aunt, Mrs. Edwards, is interested in it. You see, years ago she befriended a chap who was pretty well down and out. She's always helping somebody, bless her, and this fellow believed he could locate an old mining claim somebody had told him about. You read about such cases, and it seems like a joke, but this came true. He found the claim, staked it. Then he took in a partner, and they worked it together. Well, he died, and left half to Aunt Paula in return for what she had done for him. She didn't need it, and handed it over to me. It's somewhere in Nevada—did you say Crooked Creek?"

She was interested enough now. Her eyes opened wide as she leaned toward him. She was all sparkle and suppressed excitement.

"What was the dead partner's name?"

"They called him Andy Bird. Somehow, when Parker told me you were Matie Burroughs, I knew you came from Nevada, and I wanted to know you."

"I'm afraid you'll know me better before we're through with this," she said teasingly. "Dad gave me the half share in the 'Diamond Eye' for my eighteenth birthday a year ago."

"Gave you—"

She nodded her head quickly.

"You know, he started in just as a prospector, and he met this old Andy Bird—oh, I've heard him tell it so often—dad became his partner and helped him a little, but the claim never seemed to give back all they had expected from it. They call it Matie's Claim' out there. My own name is Elizabeth, but dad always calls me just Matie. You'll have to come out now and develop it and make it a winner."

"Do you ask me to go?"

"If we're partners, I suppose I must—"

"Are you going back, too?"

"Yes, my home is there, you know. If you write to dad at once and tell him who you are, he'll want to see you."

"Getting into New Haven," Parker called gleefully from the aisle, his hand on Warren's shoulder. "Half-way along, Doc."

"I've got a through ticket," answered Warren peacefully, with a menacing only Parker could decry. (Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)
